Doing a google search, I ran across this page:

<http://www.acroflyer.com/ea202/HallsArticle.pdf>

This is copyrighted material, and by publishing it on the net, I'm potentially losing revenue.

I sent the file to Hal as a courtesy, with the understanding that he not distribute it. Frankly I'm quite shocked to see it on the net, in a downloadable format. Literally hundreds of people would have normally had to pay to read this issue, now have it for free. There's no telling how many were then passed along to those who downloaded it.

CONTACT! Magazine is not some faceless wealthy corporation who makes their money through advertising. We are a non-profit cooperation, who's only source of revenue is through the sale of our magazine. We publish high quality articles, not multiple page ads like Kitplanes and Sport Aviation.

We are filling the need that these publications have left void... actual builders, building things, on a budget.
